Hongkong, Oct. 6,

The Secretary of the Chess Club wishes to organise an all-against-all match, with the condition that for each game a fixed date may be set down, after which it is not to be played. Only in this way can the negligent player be foiled who sets down his name, pays or forgets to pay his dollar, and then omits to meet his antagonist, culminating his offences by grambling when the game is given against him by default Let the gile be clastic as you will, but it must have its limits. Three games must be played before the end of November, three before the end of December, and so forth, though there is no objection to any man playing all his games in October if he can arrango it so.

Mr Pollock having resigned the contest for the championship, a challenge has been sent to Mr de Souza by Lt. Col. the O'Gorman. The Club's season will commence formally on Nov. 3, but the room is now open for play. The first match will be the usual contest between City and Suburbs, and a large attendance is expected.

It might be worth while to consider what are not the uses of a Chees-Club. In the Best place, membership does not confer proficiency. A man does not improve his play by merely joining, but must pract s steadily thereafter. In the second place, it is not the monopoly of the export, but a place where a man, if he will, may learn | Que of the Best Sketches of Formesa Life the moves after he becomes a member, Thirdly, members misusa their clab if it becomes the weakly resort of a few diletfinite timber-shifters, who play ladies' chess with each other, learning nothing and destroying their capacity for learning, A man should endeavour to play as far as possible a distinctly unequal game, with his superiors that he may tearn, or with his inferiors that he may teach.

Fourthly, matches are not the be-all and End-alkof a club. It is easy to overdo thom, and to have too many. They lead ! to the discouragement of the inferior player when there is no handless, and to the irritation of the letter player when there is ! Sho, Fifthly, pot-hunting will kill any game, and therefore any Ciub for the study ! of a game. The ideal Chess Club should have a large attendance and varied activities, lectures and analyzes, problems and play, performances - simultaneous and Blindfold, individual matches and tourns. ments, not all at ance nor even necessarily all in one session, for we all have our minor duties that distract our attention | Sarp Pa., 50,05, 7.1 | 6 | NE from chess for the greater part of the time; but in orderly succession.

Among the postical allusions to chess that escaped my memory when I was Masau 28.90 74 - NNE 1 0 recently quoting a few is the attikingly offective game between Livis and the widow in Middleton's Women Beware Women, which serves to distract the attention of the mother-in-law during the seduction of Bianca. Of course the passage is not quotable in this fastidious age, but the character, or better still get the play and Koch read it for himself. GOLF AND THE UNCO GUID.

The Rev. Dr. Rankin, minister of the parish church of Muthill, and one of the leading ecclesiastics in the Church of Scotland, has long been noted for the peculiar frankness of his public atterances He is always racy, but especially so when dealing with the sins and shortcomings of his fellow-divines He it was who electrified the unco guid' of Scotland by the announcement that there were far too many kirks and far too many ministers; suggesting at the same time that a third of the former should be demolished, and a third of the latter sent abroad. And he has said many other things that have at one time grieved and at another roused the wrath of his clerical brethren. His latest speech is hardly likely to improve matters. In opening a bazaar in aid of the funds of the Crieff Golf Club, he 27 declared that in Scotland the clergy had acted as a wet blanket on the national amusements and sports for 250 years-ever since they came tinder the influence of those men from Westminster who were called the 'Westminster divines,' but of whom, were he speaking for himself, he should speak a little differently and not so respectfully. It was a foreign influence and not a good English influence that had found its way into Scotland, and which had done an immense amount of harm. Speaking of golf, Dr Rankin remarked that there had been a marvellous extension of the game, although it had not developed to such an extent as eyeling and distilleries. After praising the game and its adaptation to both sexes and all ages and persons. Dr Rankin mentioned that he had heard a whisper-as to swearing. which was an idiotic and also a profane thing. The worthy divine quite recognised that there were cases in which ordinary language failed to express the feelings, when relief of some kind was necessary, but he recommended golfers when in 'undue heat' to 'avoid common words altogether, and fall back upon Gaelic names of a good strong sound and not easily spelt Take two or three of them, and when tempted to swear go over the Gaelic list. All very fine for a Highlander who has to Gaelie. But a man must be born a Celt to be able to use it with the proficiency and fluency necessary to relieve his feelings in eertain unspeakable emorgencies.

HONGKONG, THURSDAY, OCTOBER 6, 1858. The subject to which our torrespondent Peakite refers is one which closely affects a large portion of the community who live on the lower levels, as well as the Peak residents. The erection of a solid brick China Traders' Insurance C. . L d., at shelter for chair-coolies at the upper Tram Terminus has been long talked about, and the want of such a convenient building continues to give much trouble and annoyance to the entire community. Con-Noon, -Auction, on board, of the Iron sideration for the coolies might also be a matter to lead the Government to-carry out the suggestion of providing a shelter of a character different from the matshed Canton Insurance Cilico, Ltd., at the erections which are periodically blown down into the Pokrulam valley, sedan chairs and all, making ragged heaps on the hillside. We believe that the Captain Seperintendent of Police has fully recognised the reasonableness of, and the urgent necessity for, the carrying out of this idea. Captain May was the first official who strongly urged the Government to carry out this desired improvement, and we hear that he was so far successful as to get the shelter placed on the Estimates for the year 1898-1899. This, however, has been knocked on the head, as the sum for the Shelter does not appear in the Draft Estimates laid on the table at last Council meeting. As this item need not have exceeded four thousand dellars, it seems s The N. D. L. str. Bebelsberg, from Ham-Credits, 4 months' eight, ... 2. 2. pity to have thus 'massacred the innocent' scheme. The Peak residents would, we fancy, vote solid on this matter, and it would appear to us that they are the people whose duty it is to agitate in favour of the new building. As the law stands, you can charge a chair-coolie for refusing hire, and get him punished; but the Police have no power to force coolies to go on a stand and wait in the rain for a fare, while you can bring no reusonable complaint while the chairs are out in the min, and the coolies are under cover. Hence the reasonableness of providing a On demand, 61% pm. decent and comfortable shelter. It appears to all those who are interested in communifilver (per or.) 2713d. cation between the upper and lower levels that something ought to be done, and at once, so that the Captain Superintendent of Police may be put in a position to make satisfactory arrangements with the coolie

> At the Magistracy this afternoon, before Commander Hastings, the re-hearing of the charge against Cheng Tsang, a letter-carrier, who had been sentenced to six months' imprisonment for unlawfully detaining letters, was resumed. Mr Brutton appeared for the defence. Hon. A. M. Thomson, Post master-General, gave evidence of the system of working. The case was further adjourned.
